

In a nerve crisis you have every assurance that Sanatogen will help you

WHEN indecision takes the place of certainty—when lassitude and irritability replace ambition and cheerfulness—nature is warning you that your nerves are at the breaking point.

Your nerves will stand a wonderful amount of strain. They will respond untiringly up to a certain definite point—then the tension becomes too great and there is a general let-down in your mental and physical activities.

Sleep becomes broken—digestion upset and uncertain—debility takes the place of vigor. In short, your nerves are crying for help—they are starving and require food.

At such times as these thousands of men and women who have driven themselves to the utmost found in Sanatogen a helpful way out of their nerve troubles.

Scientifically combining the elements that furnish food and strength to nerves—purest protein and organic phosphorus—Sanatogen offers them in an easily digestible form—causing no strain or stimulation. It is actually carried to the nerve cells—replacing lost energy and helping to renew nervous vitality.

The many grateful thousands who have taken Sanatogen have written enthusiastically of their experiences—experiences that find confirmation at the hands of 16,000 physicians who write from observation of its remarkable powers in making stronger nerves—insuring better sleep, better appetite, better digestion and physical and mental endurance.

In YOUR nerve crisis Sanatogen may be just what YOU need.

Prof. Thomas B. Sullivan, M. S., Ph. D., The well-known research chemist of Stevens' Institute, writes:

"The chemical union of the constituents of Sanatogen is a true one, representative of the highest skill in the formation of a product containing phosphorus in the organic phosphate condition, and so combined that digestion and assimilation of Sanatogen are rendered complete with the greatest ease."

Sir Gilbert Parker, M. P., The eminent novelist statesman, writes from London: "Sanatogen is to my mind a true food tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy and giving fresh vigor to the over-worked body and mind."

Lady Henry Somerset, The prominent social reform advocate, writes: "Sanatogen undoubtedly restores sleep, invigorates the nerves and braces the patient to health. I have watched its effect on people whose nervous systems have been entirely undermined. I have proved Sanatogen to be most valuable."

Hal Caines, The dramatist, writes: "My experience of Sanatogen has been that as a tonic nerve food it has on more than one occasion benefited me."

Arnold Bennett, The famous novelist, writes: "Sanatogen's tonic effect on me is simply wonderful."

PHILIPPINES FEAR RUIN IF SUGAR TARIFF IS REMOVED

Bank President Points Out Destructive Effects of Wilson-Underwood Bill

MANILA, P. I.—"Free sugar will place the sugar industry of the islands just where it was before the Payne-Aldrich bill went into effect," said John S. Hord, president of the Bank of the Philippine Islands, to a Cablenews-American reporter yesterday.

"Does that mean that the Philippines will find United States markets closed against them, and be compelled to sell a lower grade of sugar in China?"

"Exactly that," said Mr. Hord. "The islands will not be able to compete in high grade sugar in United States markets, and the result will be a gradual falling off in the quality of the product and adjustment to the only market in which it can compete, China, which uses quantities of the low grades."

"Will not the islands be as well situated as Java and other tropical countries for the production of cheap sugar?"

"Java has the benefit of coolie labor, and without tariff protection could undersell the Philippines in United States markets. Out here we have educated the people up to a higher standard of living, with resultant higher cost of living. Java has no such ambitions for her laborers. It would be just and proper for the United States to give the people tariff protection to enable them to live up to the new standards set for them."

Mr. Hord was not convinced that congress seriously considered the removal of the sugar tariff, and said that he would feel more assured when he received confirmation of the recent cable information on the subject.

Harold M. Pitt, president of the Manila Merchants' Association, and a close student of sugar production the world over, was more optimistic in his views on the subject.

"In the first place," said Mr. Pitt, "a bill providing for free sugar will never pass the senate. It may pass the house without much trouble, but to the senate it will find arrayed against it the full strength of 'beet sugar' and 'cane sugar' senators, who will be able to enlist enough support from the ranks of the non-sugar states to prevent the passage of the bill.

"The house is a different proposition. Congressmen from industrial centers are in the majority, and the chances of the bill are greatly enhanced on that account."

"What would be the effect locally if the bill should become a law?"

"For a few years, at least, it would tend to restrict growth of the industry but sugar's capital would soon appreciate the advantages of local investment, and sugar would quickly become the chief product of the islands; with proper methods we can produce sugar cheaper than Java, much cheaper than Cuba, and much more cheaply than Hawaii. Our soil is as good, and all we need is proper equipment."

"Will German beet sugar enter the United States in larger quantities if the tariff bar is removed?"

"Perhaps it will," replied Mr. Pitt. "Germany pays an export bounty on sugar which enables German producers to compete in almost any market. German sugar in limited quantities is now being sent to the United States but not enough of it to be a serious factor in the trade."

"Will the removal of the tariff in the United States reduce the price of sugar here?"

"For awhile it will, but prices will soon soar. Our tariff protects against higher prices instead of preventing a lower price. If the tariff is removed the beet sugar industry, which produces 600,000 tons of refined sugar annually, will practically go out of business, and the world supply will be reduced by that no inconsiderable amount. The result will be higher prices all around, and instead of benefiting the United States will probably pay more for its sugar in the long run."

Among business men generally who are interested in sugar the impression prevails that free sugar will not become a law, basing their belief on the widespread influence of the beet sugar industry, which in recent years has been extended to nearly all of the western and many of the eastern states.

WOULD COMPEL MAGUIRE TO RESIGN

Stating that unless County Auditor Maguire of Hawaii tenders his resignation steps will be taken to impeach him, members of the board of Hawaii county supervisors, according to a wireless, are determined to force the auditor to give up his position. In case Maguire still refuses to leave office, it will be necessary, in order to impeach him, to get the signature of 25 citizens. From the present temper of the board of supervisors it is said that such impeachment proceedings would be carried to a successful conclusion.

With a view to reimbursing the county treasury of the considerable amount involved in the alleged speculations of Auditor Maguire, action was taken yesterday by the board of supervisors authorizing the city and county attorney to bring suits for the money lost. It is probable, in the event such suits are instituted, that all of Maguire's bondsmen and possibly the First Bank of Hilo will be the defendants.

ATTORNEY RAWLINS ILL

Taken suddenly ill during the trial of a liquor-selling case in Circuit Judge Robinson's court yesterday, Attorney W. T. Rawlins was compelled to go home immediately after the jury returned its verdict. He was confined at home the remainder of the day and one or two other cases in which he had been retained as counsel were delayed. His illness was not considered serious and it was thought he would be out within a few days.

WESTERN FRUIT IN GERMANY

Consul Geo. Eugene Eager at Bammen, Germany, is credited with the following article in Consular Reports:

Five years ago the banana was scarcely known here and seldom seen in fruit stores. Today it has become an article of food and is as plentiful in any German city of importance as in like cities of the United States. It is also sold quite as cheaply.

This is a result of the business acumen of an English firm said to be affiliated with the American United Fruit Co. It has a line of seventeen steamers of 4,000 to 5,500-tonnage, which ply between Costa Rica, Jamaica and Central American ports taking on bananas and delivering them at London and Hull; 100,000 bunches are received weekly and from these markets are distributed throughout France, Germany and Sweden. The bananas are packed in half vans that can be hoisted aboard ship or unloaded and shipped on freight cars and do not need to be disturbed until unpacked at the final destination.

The largest firm of wholesale fruit-sellers in Dusseldorf [name on application to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce] has an average sale during the winter of 600 bunches a week and during the summer of 800 to 1,000 bunches. The bananas cost in London about $2.85 per 110 pounds and sell to the retailers for about 5 to 6 cents a pound.

The Colombia Banana Co. has also begun this line of trade but has not yet made much headway. It is said to be planning a $2,000,000 increase of capital.

A large business is also done here in pineapples, but complaint is made that they decay easily and suffer much loss in transportation.

If there is an oversupply of "Rocky Ford" melons sufficient for the necessity of an outside market, I believe that they could be successfully introduced in Germany. The melons that are to be had here are not so delicious in taste and quality, and they always arrive quite late in the autumn.

American peanuts are slowly making an appearance, and one sees occasionally in a fruit store the sign "Peanuts, fresh roasted."

President Adams' Will.

[By Latest Mail]

QUINCY, Mass.—An interpretation of the will of John Adams, second president of the United States, who left a sum of money to this city for educational purposes, will be necessary before the city can make the planned disposal of Adams academy, in which many notable men received preparatory school training.

The academy closed its doors because of a lack of funds soon after the death of its head master, Dr. William Everett, and the city has asked the supreme court to determine whether under the deed of gift the building may be used for other than education purposes.

The granite and brick structure stands not far from the center of the city, on the site of the birthplace of John Hancock, first signer of the Declaration of Independence, and husband of "Dorothy Q." immortalized by the late Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.
